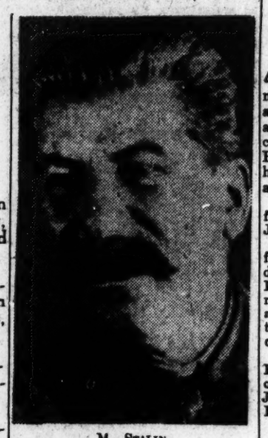
WAR TALKS IN MOSCOW

MR. CHURCHILL MEETS M. STALIN

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL.



M. STALIN.

"DECISION TO FIGHT TO FINAL VICTORY"

THE mystery regarding the silence of Mr. Winston Churchill for some time past was dispelled yesterday, when an official communiqué was issued in London and Moscow.

It was announced that he and other British representatives had had discussions for four days last week in Moscow with M. Stalin and other Russian representatives, and that the United States President also was represented.

Mr. Churchill arrived in the Soviet capital on Wednesday and left at dawn on Sunday. This was the first occasion on which he and M. Stalin had met.

While the official statement says that a number of decisions were reached, their nature remains a secret, but the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent states that matters concerning immediate aid for Russia, including second front possibilities, were examined in detail.

A statement by Mr. Churchill, broadcast by Moscow radio last night, said: "We are full of determination to continue the fight, hand in hand, whatever sufferings or difficulties lie in wait."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

The text of the official communiqué, which is issued in London and Moscow, is as follows:—

"Negotiations have taken place in Moscow between the President of the Council of the Peoples' Commissars of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, J. V. Stalin, and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Mr. Winston Churchill, in which Mr. Harriman, representing the President of the United States of America, participated. There took part in the discussions:—The Peoples' Commissar for Foreign Affairs, V. M. Molotov; Marshal K. E. Voroshilov (from the Soviet side); the British Ambassador, Sir A. Clark Kerr; the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir A. Brooke, and other responsible representatives of the British armed forces, and the Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Sir A. Cadogan (from the British side).

"A number of decisions were reached covering the field of the war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe. This just war of liberation both Governments are determined to carry on with all their power and energy until the complete destruction of Hitlerism and any similar tyranny has been achieved. The discussions, which were carried on in an atmosphere of cordiality and complete sincerity, provided an opportunity of reaffirming the existence of close friendship and understanding between the Soviet Union, United Kingdom and the United States of America, in entire accordance with the allied relationship existing between them."

To make this long tour, says Press Association, Mr. Churchill obviously had to run great risks, but he has never been one to be deterred from the path of duty by the thought of danger. As on so many occasions since he became Prime Minister, he swept all difficulties aside in order to confer with M. Stalin, who has frequently expressed his admiration of Mr. Churchill and his desire to meet "this grand old war-horse."

General Wavell, it was announced by the British Ministry of Information, also took part in some of the discussions.

"WAR TO VICTORY"

Moscow radio last night broadcast a statement made by Mr. Churchill in Moscow reiterating determination to pursue the war to final victory.

In a Russian translation from a record the statement said: "We are determined to continue the fight hand-in-hand, whatever the sufferings or whatever the difficulties that lie in wait. We shall continue the fight hand-in-hand like comrades and brothers until the last remnant of the Hitlerite régime is smashed, and remains only a memory to the world and a warning to future generations."

The statement recorded by Mr. Harriman, also broadcast from Moscow last night, said: "The President of the United States asked me to accompany the Prime Minister of Great Britain during his most important journey to Moscow at this decisive moment of the war. The President of the United States will adhere to all the decisions which Mr. Churchill may take here.

"America will stand by the side of the Russians, hand-in-hand, at the front."

SECOND FRONT

The reasons for Mr. Churchill's visit to Moscow are so obvious that it would be futile to make a mystery of them, says Reuter's Diplomatic Correspondent. Obviously a question of such importance as a second front must be the subject of full, frank and free discussion between the principal Powers involved. It is as essential for Russia as for Great Britain and America, that when that front is launched it shall have maximum strength, efficiency and chance of success. The assault must be carefully timed and come neither too soon nor too late. It must be a second front with the Germans as fully engaged in the East as they will be in the West.

Serious as is the situation to-day in Southern Russia, it is really only a subsidiary offensive, with comparatively limited objectives. The Germans are employing only a tithe of their forces, and the Russians have their main armies still intact. The way the Russians have been able to hold out at Voronezh and Stalingrad makes it clear the German offensive is still far from being fully extended. Mr. Churchill will, naturally, have discussed all these considerations with M. Stalin, and both men are too realistic and practical not to find the basis of a complete understanding.

GLOBAL STRATEGY

It is thought also that Mr. Churchill and M. Stalin would have given consideration to the important question of co-ordination of global military strategy among the Allies and to have debated the advisability of some kind of supreme or central command for the co-ordination of military effort and general war direction.

Unless Mr. Churchill decides either to broadcast to the nation or to summon Parliament from its summer recess, no further official statement on the meeting is likely to be made until the Premier makes his next review of the war when Parliament re-assembles after the summer recess.

MOSCOW MEETINGS

Harold King, Reuter's special correspondent, cabling from Moscow yesterday afternoon, said that the meetings in Moscow lasted from Wednesday to Saturday last week. The British delegation included Sir Arthur Cadogan, Permanent Under-Secretary at the Foreign Office; General Sir Allan Brooke, C.I.G.S.; General Sir Archibald Wavell, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Chief of the Air Command, Middle East; Sir Charles Wilson, the Prime Minister's personal physician; Col. E. I. C. Jacob, Commander C. R. Thompson, R.N.; Lieut.-Col. G. Dunphil, and Mr. T R Rowan, the Premier's Private Secretary. The British and American delegations totalled twenty persons in all.

It was at 4 p.m. last Wednesday that three 'planes landed on the Moscow airfield, bringing the British Prime Minister, Mr. Averell Harriman, and the British and American military representatives. The delegations reached Moscow on Wednesday, August 12, and left again in the early hours of Sunday morning, August 16. General Wavell arrived on Thursday. Owing to a slight mishap to his 'plane, it was obliged to return to Teheran shortly after taking off from there.

THE INVITATION

Mr. Churchill, who flew from London, came to Moscow at the invitation of M. Stalin. He is reported by close observers of the proceedings to have been in "fine fettle" throughout. The official part of the proceedings began at Moscow airport, where Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harriman were welcomed by M. Molotov, the Soviet Foreign Minister; Marshal Shaposhnikov, and other Soviet representatives, as well as by the British and American Ambassadors, and the United States General Follet Bradley, who had arrived from Washington a few days earlier.

The three Allied 'planes had been accompanied by a Soviet fighter escort. At the airport the Soviet Guards band played the British, American and Soviet Anthems. Before getting into the first of a fleet of cars which rushed the delegations to the Kremlin, Mr. Churchill posed for a battery of Soviet photographers, giving them the "V" sign. Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harriman recorded brief statements, which will in due course be broadcast throughout the world.

KREMLIN DINNER

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harriman had their first meeting with M. Stalin on the evening they arrived. It lasted nearly four hours. Throughout the proceedings, in the words of one close observer, Mr. Churchill "worked like a beaver." When some relaxation was suggested for him after his strenuous journey, Mr. Churchill is stated to have replied: "I never let pleasure clog the wheels of business." On the following day (Thursday) Mr. Churchill had a long talk with M. Molotov, and later a second meeting with M. Stalin. On Friday, after another day crowded with official business, there was a big dinner at the Kremlin in honour of the British and American guests. M. Stalin presided. All the Ministers of the Soviet Government were present, including all the members of the Defence Committee and Politburo.

The atmosphere at this dinner reflected the atmosphere prevailing throughout the whole meeting and the negotiations. Typical of it was the air of M. Stalin himself, who, according to one distinguished guest, was "in great good humour." M. Stalin himself proposed half-a-dozen of the 25 toasts. Others were proposed by Mr. Harriman, Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, and Admiral Standley. Dinner was served with traditional Russian hospitality, and went on until well after midnight.

On Saturday Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harriman spent the day in the country near Moscow. A final meeting with M. Stalin took place late in the afternoon. It was a farewell visit only, complete and full agreement having been reached on the previous day. The British Prime Minister and his party took to the air again on their homeward journey in the early summer dawn of Sunday. Nobody except those actually taking part in the conversations and an inner ring of officials, together with the soldiers at the airport, actually saw Mr. Churchill while he was in Moscow.

DOMINIONS TOLD

General Smuts, South African Premier, was kept in close touch with the plans which led up to the Moscow conference, and was acquainted well in advance with many of the subjects that were set down for discussion between Mr. Churchill and M. Stalin (says Reuter). Before Mr. Churchill left England for Russia he communicated his intentions to General Smuts, as well as to the other Dominion Prime Ministers, in accordance with the machinery whereby the Dominion Governments are kept fully and immediately informed of plans, present and future, of the British War Cabinet.

It was officially announced in Capetown yesterday that General Smuts met Mr. Churchill in Cairo before the latter flew on to Moscow.—(Reuter.)

PREMIER'S THANKS

Mr. Churchill sent the following telegram, broadcast by Moscow radio last night (quoted by Reuter), to M. Stalin on leaving Moscow:—"I take the opportunity of thanking you for your comradely attitude and hospitality. I am very glad to have visited Moscow, because I am certain that our contact will play a useful part in furthering our cause. Please convey my kind regards to M. Molotov."

VIEWS IN GERMANY

Commenting on Mr. Churchill's visit to Moscow, says Reuter, the Berliner Boersenzeitung, declares: "He is quarrelling with Stalin on the interpretation of the expression, 'second front in 1942'"

The German News Agency, quoted by German Radio yesterday, gave the following "reasons" for Mr. Churchill's visit to Moscow—(1) The desperate plight of the Soviet Union, owing to the German advance; (2) a personal visit to explain to M. Stalin the position with regard to the second front; (3) to ascertain on the spot the ability of the Soviet Union to offer further resistance; (4) to ascertain the stability of the Soviet régime, and to make contact with personalities who would be willing to continue the struggle on Britain's side in case of a collapse of the régime.—(Associated Press.)

Dr. Otto Krieg, German Military Commentator on Berlin Radio, last night said:—"Churchill is now in Moscow examining the last chance of salvation. But we are not in any danger in the West. Churchill has nothing to offer Stalin."—(Reuter.)

HEAVY CHANNEL GUNFIRE

German heavy guns at Cap Griz Nez and Calais opened fire on the Dover area shortly after midnight. British guns replied to the cannonade, which was very heavy.

The British fire was generally in two-gun salvoes, but latterly the Germans were sending over as many as six shells in one salvo. The sky was lit up by the brilliant gun flashes.

ENGLISH TOWNS BOMBED

Bombs were dropped by raiding aircraft on a town in the South of England late last night. Houses were damaged, and a man was killed in the débris. Several people were trapped.

High explosives crashed near two other towns. There were no casualties.

FLEET AT GIBRALTAR

VICHY, Monday.—With the arrival of an aircraft carrier, two battleships, 16 destroyers and several other small warships, there are now at Gibraltar four aircraft carriers, three battleships, three cruisers, 26 destroyers and 12 other warships, as well as several submarines. The aircraft carrier Illustrious, which took refuge in Gibraltar after the convoy battle, is badly damaged, says a Vichy News Agency message.—(Reuter.)

U.S. PROGRESS IN SOLOMONS

NAVAL STATEMENT

AMERICAN forces have recaptured some 5,000 square miles, about a third of the total area of the Solomon Islands, according to unofficial estimates current in Washington, says Reuter. It is generally felt, however, that the battle will be a long one.

Washington forecasts predict further American assaults on Japanese-held Pacific territory.

General MacArthur's communiqué from the South-West Pacific yesterday, referring to the New Guinea, Kokoda areas, said:—"Patrol skirmishes between small enemy forces and our outguard elements beyond the barrier line of the Owen Stanley continue."

It is learned officially that the Kokoda skirmishing is slightly south of the village, indicating that the Japanese are temporarily occupying Kokoda.—(Reuter.)

SEA AND AIR FIGHTS

A Washington War Department communiqué last night stated:—

"South Pacific Area.—It is now possible to issue some details of the attacks and landing operations which have been in progress in the Solomon Islands since the early morning of August 7 (local time).

"The attacks were a complete surprise to the enemy. Eighteen of their seaplanes were destroyed before they could get into action. Transport-borne amphibious forces of the United States Marine Corps made several landings on islands in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area. Vigorous enemy resistance was rapidly overcome, and a number of Japanese prisoners were taken. Shore positions taken by the United States forces have since been developed and are now well established. During these landing operations cruisers and destroyers were so disposed as to protect our transports and cargo ships as they unloaded troops and equipment.

"While thus engaged on August 7th and August 8th our forces were attacked by enemy land-based aircraft. These attacks were driven off, and at least 18 more enemy 'planes were destroyed, while only minor damage was suffered by our forces.

"During the night of August 8th-9th an enemy force of cruisers and destroyers attempted to attack our transports, cargo ships and supporting forces. This enemy force was intercepted and engaged by our cruisers and destroyers. Heavy fighting which followed resulted in the enemy being forced to retreat before reaching the vessels engaged in the landing operations.

"The close-range fighting during this night engagement resulted in damage both to the enemy and our forces. This night action is the only engagement between surface forces fought to date in the Solomon Islands.

"It is impossible in a night engagement to determine accurately the damage inflicted on the opposing force. No further statement is made at this time of the extent and damage to our forces, because of the obvious value of such information to the enemy."

JAPANESE RAIDS

Claims that Japanese naval 'planes on Sunday heavily bombed Townsville, Cairns Wyndham, Port Darwin and Port Hedland, on the North Australian coast, were made in a Tokyo despatch to the German News Agency last night.—(Reuter.)

U.S. BOMBERS OVER FRANCE

GERMAN TARGETS RAIDED

The first all-American bombing attack on German objectives was carried out in Flying Fortresses yesterday afternoon, when marshalling yards at Rouen were "successfully" raided. The Americans, escorted by R.A.F., Dominion and Allied fighters, were led by Brig.-General Ira C. Eaker, 46-year-old Commanding General of the U.S. Army Air Force Bomber Command.

All the bomb loads were released on the target, stated a communiqué, and all the Fortresses returned safely. There were many combats with German fighters, two of which were shot down for the loss of two escorting fighters. A third German 'plane was destroyed by a Fortress gunner.

A.P.A. message states that targets at Caen were also attacked.

The flying fortresses, which attacked Rouen, were escorted by a strong force of R.A.F. fighters, states the Air Ministry News Service. At the same time other U.S. bombers, similarly protected by fighter escorts made diversionary feints north and south of the target—one towards the Dunkirk area and the other towards the Cherbourg Peninsula. The main bomber force, whose fighter escort included Spitfire squadrons of the U.S. Army Air Force, reached their objective without interference. Their bombs were seen to burst on the marshalling yards, one of the main traffic distribution centres of the Nord railway system, while two sticks of heavy calibre bombs scored hits on engine sheds.

MALTA RAIDERS DOWN

MALTA, Monday.—Three German fighters were shot down into the sea when Spitfires took on more than double their number in a combat. The German fighters approached Malta at a great height. There were no raids last night.—(Reuter.)

MORE DESERT ACTIVITY

LONDON, Monday.—British night patrols have been more active in the Egyptian desert battlefield than for some days past, says Reuter. They attacked Axis units in the northern and central sectors. An Allied reconnaissance thrust, under cover of a smoke screen, in the northern sector of the El Alamein front, was repulsed. Berlin claimed to-day, and three British tanks were destroyed. The Agency reports an attack by light German bombers on vehicle concentrations, and claims that a British A.A. position near the railway station of El Ruweisat was wiped out, together with its crew.—(Reuter.)

TRANSPORT SUNK

STOCKHOLM, Monday.—Aftonmidningen, of Stockholm, reports today that a Norwegian ship, with 200 German soldiers on board, was sunk a few weeks ago by a submarine, believed to be Russian, which stole into the harbour of Hammerfest.

BOOKS BANG THE SCALE

YOUR WASTE PAPER IS WANTED

COLLECTIONS of old directories, almanacs, year books, annuals, and bound volumes of old periodicals are treasure-trove for the house-to-house waste paper collectors, it was suggested yesterday by a member of a Dublin printing firm.

Here is the approx. w.p. value of samples of this kind of literature likely to be found in private houses: Thom's Directory, 7 lbs.; Stock Exchange Year Book, 4½ lbs.; Who's Who, 5 lbs.; Statesman's Year Book, 2 lbs.; "Illustrated London News" (bound, vol. c., 1890), 14 lbs.; Whitaker's Almanac, 1 lb.

A bookseller stated that directories and reference books of this kind were only of waste paper value when they were more than four years old. Old novels, however, of almost all kinds were still saleable as reading matter.

The secretary of the new Wastepaper Company (Mr. R. Buchanan) heartily endorsed the old book suggestion. "A couple of old directories," he said, "weigh almost as much as a sack of waste paper. If our collectors could only get one or two old books at each of the 200 houses they call upon every day they would almost make their quota on old books alone."

Telephoning for the waste paper collector.

Yesterday's collections again made a new record. More teams were out than were working last week, and, in addition, almost all the teams had a higher individual return. The districts to be collected during the remainder of this week include:—North Side—Howth road, Vernon avenue, Dollymount, Marino, Upper Drumcondra, Dorset street and Phibsborough. South Side—Northumberland road, Sandymount, Ballsbridge, Ranelagh, Harold's Cross, Kimmage and Rathgar.

Several readers have been inquiring about the addresses of the collecting depots. Their intention is to bring the paper to the depot and so save the company the trouble of collection. Mr. R. Williams, manager of the company, said the difficulty was that there was nobody permanently on duty at these depots, which were only open when the collectors were going out and coming in.

A number of people have also been inquiring about having a special collection made at their houses. The manager points out that their collectors will call within a month at every house in Dublin. If, however, anyone urgently wants to clear out stocks of old paper of more than 3 stone in weight, a note to the Wastepaper Co., 55 Dawson street, Tel. No. 23187, will result in a special messenger being sent.

INDIA'S QUIET DAY

ONLY MINOR INCIDENTS

BOMBAY, Monday.—The Moslem League Working Committee, at to-day's meeting, took due note of Mr. Rajagopalachari's appeal that it should co-operate with Congress in forming a Provisional Government for India. A sub-committee was formed to draft a resolution, which will be discussed at to-morrow's session of the full Working Committee. No hasty decision is expected.

The country has had another quiet day, with only a few minor incidents in Calcutta, where a tram was fired. Bombay, Karachi, Lahore, New Delhi, Lucknow, Allahabad, Patna, and other cities are quiet. All mills have resumed work in Bombay, and tram and 'bus services are running in all areas.

NEW DELHI, Monday.—The possibility of an early meeting of the Indian Central Legislative Assembly was being discussed to-day. The Assembly was expected to meet earlier than October 26. It was assumed that an effort would be made to open a debate on the political situation which has arisen from Mahatma Gandhi's "Quit India" movement.—(Associated Press.)

BOMBAY, Monday.—The first collective fine to be imposed in the Central Provinces during the present troubles is on the Ramtek area, in the Nagpur district, where the sum of Rs.30,000 (£2,250) is being immediately collected. It was here that the police station and other Government buildings were burned down by a mob of 5,000 on Thursday. The Provincial Government are considering the imposing of fines on two other communities. One is Chimur Village, in the Chanda district. The other is Urmer, a town in the Nagpur district.—(Reuter.)

CIGARETTES

Recent importations of tobacco leaf into this country probably will mean that cigarettes will be more plentiful next month. Meanwhile, although the manufacturers are maintaining their monthly allocations to the retailers at eighty per cent. of their former requirements, cigarettes are more difficult to obtain than ever. This paradox is created by the recent ban on export from Great Britain of all cigarettes and tobacco, which forces all smokers in Eire who formerly favoured imported brands to smoke Irish-manufactured cigarettes in their stead.

One effect of the recent tobacco export ban by the British authorities is that Egyptian and Turkish cigarettes may become unobtainable to smokers in this country, but the wholesalers are hopeful that some solution may be found to this problem before it develops.

LAST QUINTUPLET DEAD

Thomas, the last surviving baby of the Leydon quintuplets, has died in Holles Street Hospital. He was seventeen days old.

RUSSIANS HOLDING THE STALINGRAD LINE

GERMANS ADVANCING TOWARDS GROZNY

THE Germans are making a determined bid for Grozny, another big Soviet oil centre, and heavy fighting is going on near Mineralnie Vodi, some 140 miles away. German troops, according to Vichy, have reached Budiennoysk, two-thirds of the way to the Caspian, and Elista, 180 miles west of Astrakhan.

In the battle for Stalingrad Soviet troops are firmly holding their positions north-west of Kotelnikovo, but Berlin officially claimed that in the north-east loop of the Don bend Soviet troops had been "annihilatingly defeated" and the river reached.

German troops, according to Vichy, have already crossed the Kuban in the direction of the Black Sea ports of Anapa and Novorossisk, but Soviet resistance on the north bank is still strong enough to prevent any mass crossing of the river.

Yesterday's German communiqué mentions Russian attacks at Vyazma and Rzhev, where "German troops of all categories are engaged in continuous heavy defensive fighting," and the Russians are also attacking at Bryansk and on the Leningrad front.—(Reuter.)

VICHY, Monday.—A mass attack on Stalingrad both from the north and the south is expected at any moment, say Stockholm reports. In the Caucasus the Germans are pushing on towards the oil wells of Grozny, and are believed to have reached the region of Budiennovsk. Another advance is being made down the Terek Valley and around Krasnodar, says the despatch. The situation is confused. Violent fighting is going on. On the Lower Kuban, which has been crossed by German advance guards in the direction of the Black Sea ports of Anapa and Novorossisk, big Soviet resistance on the north bank is still strong enough to prevent any mass crossing of the River.

RUSSIAN ATTACKS

Fighting has blazed up again round Voronezh, the Germans counter-attacking to the north and south of the town. Far to the north, 140 miles south-west and north-west of Moscow, Soviet armoured forces, supported by infantry, are attacking strongly at Vyazma and Rzhev. The Germans had to deal with eleven attacks in one day, but it is claimed that they maintained their line. The strength and rhythm of these attacks, it is emphasised in Berlin, prove that the Russians still have plenty of reserves, and it is expected they will make further attempts at a break-through here. Soviet troops are still attacking even further north, in the Lake Ilmen region, and at Volkhov and at Bryansk, 210 miles south-west of Moscow.—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Monday.—In the region of Elista, 220 miles south-east of Rostov, and 180 miles west of Astrakhan, German troops penetrated deeper into the Kalmuk steppes, says the German News Agency.

Elista is 110 miles north of Budiennovsk, and 200 miles north of the upper reaches of the Terek River. These areas, the farthest east claimed by the Axis forces, are in a straight line running north-south, roughly parallel, at a distance of some 120 to 140 miles, with the western shore of the Caspian Sea.—(Reuter.)

Quoting a German High Command communiqué, the German Agency says that, in bombing attacks on the Black Sea ports, hits were scored on the main mole at Tuapse; several transport trains were badly damaged and lines cut. German and Slovak troops, attacking in the Caucasus, gained ground to the south, where stiff enemy resistance had to be overcome. In the north-eastern part of the great Don bend remnants of the enemy still resisting west of the Don were thrown back. The severity of the battle, and the strength of the enemy positions in the north-eastern loop of the great Don bend, is indicated by the fact that in preparation for the last German break-through sappers of a single German battalion had to render harmless more than 2,700 mines in two days.—(Reuter.)

DON BEND BATTLE

LONDON, Monday. — To-day's German communique reported:—"South of the Lower Kuban and in the north-west part of the Caucasus Mountains our troops are pushing further forward in successful attacks.

"In the north-east loop of the great Don bend, the enemy has been annihilatingly defeated and the river everywhere reached. The mopping of the scattered troops is still in progress. The whole of the Don basin is now firmly in the hands of the German and allied troops.

"East of Vyasma and at Rzhev troops of all categories are engaged in continuous heavy defensive fighting. In the northern sector of the front attacks were repelled at several points, and points of assembly smashed by concentrated fire."—(Reuter.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Monday. — To-night's Soviet communiqué quoted by Reuter states: "During August 17 our troops fought the enemy south-east of Kletskaya, north-east of Kotelnikovo, as well as in the areas of Mineralnie Vodi and Krasnodar. No material changes took place in the other sectors of the front."

The supplement to the communiqué says: "During the last few days, in the area south-east of Kletskaya, 50 enemy tanks were destroyed, and 5,000 officers and men killed. In the area south-east of Kletskaya our troops fought stubborn defensive engagements with enemy tanks and infantry.

A DOCTOR'S WORD TO WOMEN

BEAUTY DEPENDS ON HEALTH

Few women realise how vitally their looks depend on their health. They cannot possibly have fresh, clear complexions if poisonous wastes are clogging the bloodstream. They cannot keep slim, youthful figures if unhealthy fat is allowed to accumulate. And they cannot be bright and vivacious if they are in pain from backache or swollen ankles, and suffer broken nights through kidney and bladder troubles.

And fewer still realise that, there's one salts specially designed for women, specially designed to clear away all poisonous waste without any harsh purging or griping, and combining with the valuable mineral salts which banish Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica, pure oil of juniper to counteract the kidney and bladder troubles to which women are specially prone.

These salts are called Juno-Junipah, and if every woman would take just a pinch in warm water every morning she would soon see the difference. Her pains would disappear, her health and looks improve and her excess fat would simply melt away.

Better Health and Looks or NO PAY!

So certain is Juno-Junipah to make any woman feel and look better that here is an offer! Get a 2/- packet of Juno-Junipah from any chemist to-day. Take it as directed, and if you aren't more than satisfied with what it has done, he will refund your money without question. Obtainable from all chemists.

SOLOMONS BATTLEFIELD

By Our Military Correspondent.

THE first point that occurs to one regarding the Allied attack in the Solomon Islands is the difference between it and the Coral Sea battle of three months earlier in the same waters. In the Coral Sea conflict the Allies struck, it is true, but in a forestalling, defensive way: they were conforming to the general strategic initiative of the Japanese. This time it was not so: the Allies possessed the initiative, strategically as well as tactically. To quote Admiral King: "This operation in the Tulagi area is significant in that it marks our first assumption of the initiative and offensive." And the Admiral explained that: "The objective was to expel the Japanese from the Tulagi area and make use of that area for Allied purposes." Tulagi is on one of the southern islands of the 800-mile long group.

The "Tulagi area" is an important region. It marks the extreme point of Japanese S.E. penetration; and it is the corner-stone of their strategic disposition in general. From this region their front extends westward, via New Guinea, the Moluccas, Java and Sumatra to Burma; and from thence their long oceanic flank runs back, through Nauru and the Gilbert, the Mandated islands, Wake and the Bonins, to Yokosuka Bay. Evidently "Allied purposes" here could be very far-reaching; so that it is no wonder that Japanese resistance has been strenuous.

JAPAN-RUSSIA

If any early attack was to be made upon Japan it had to be along this flank. On the side of China no offensive could be opened. On the contrary, the Chinese were—and are and will be—hard pressed to sustain an effective defence within their own remoter territories. The internal imbroglio in India has added serious new complications in this quarter—rendering, as it does, Japan's hands always more free.

There may also have been operative a consideration that has recently figured much in the utterances of Chinese spokesmen, and also in American pronouncements. This was to the effect that Japan, for some reason or another, was meditating an attack on Russia in the Far East. Despite all the suggestions along this line, it is very hard to believe that the moment, at least. For one thing, this is not the season for fighting in East Siberia. Japan started her last war against Russia in April—the land part of it, that is to say. Indeed, in this particular matter one is almost tempted to suspect "wishful thinking" on the part of both the Americans and the Chinese. The status quo in and near Manchukuo is so advantageous to both protagonists that one finds difficulty in seeing what advantage either could expect from a change. Japan's seizure of the outer Aleutians was not aimed to stop supplies to Russia—who received none whatever by this route. The design was to hold America at arm's length and impose a barrier between her and China. The Japanese Aleutian garrison is placed at 10,000 men.

PACIFIC ZONE

It is not easy to grasp the extreme difficulty of these amphibious Pacific operations from the Allied point of view. In the immediate fighting zone they have lost, one after another, all their regular bases. Consequently, substitute bases have to be occupied and organised on such island stepping-stones as can be progressively made good. With few exceptions, these island bases lack effective military resources—though this would not apply to New Caledonia, the French island, which, presumably, served as the Allied base for the Solomons operation.

It is considered that, in order to keep one American division supplied in Australia, eight merchant ships are permanently occupied crossing the Pacific over and back. In view of the shipping situation, it will be realised that the scale of Pacific offensives will be confined within moderate bounds. Where Marine Corps troops are employed the problem is simpler: the Marines are part of the Navy and work with the fighting ships. This, however, does not mean that the fighting ships can serve as transports—so the result is that Marine Corps operations are of a special kind. While Marines were specifically mentioned in the Solomons operation, it is not clear whether only Marines were employed. The mention of transports may indicate other troops as well—or possibly, heavier equipment intended for the establishment of a permanent base.

PROSPECTS FOR THE HARVEST

Harvesters in County Dublin.

By a Staff Reporter.

Despite recent heavy rains, grain all over the country is doing well. In some districts slight lodging of oats has occurred, but it is not on a great enough scale to affect yield in general, I was told yesterday.

So far, no idea of the total grain yield can be formed, but by the beginning of next month the harvest will be in full swing. It is probable that the yield of winter wheat will be greater than last year, as all over the country it has been found extremely healthy.

Rumours of the prevalence of wheat midge have been refuted by Government inspectors who toured the country. The pest has been known in this country for about thirty years and its occurrence has never been the cause of anxiety. Despite the shortage of dressings the grain has stood up well, and no serious incidence of disease has been reported.

The potato crop has improved to a very great extent in the past three or four weeks. Up to a month ago growers were anticipating a very bad harvest of potatoes, following the long spell of dry weather. Since then a great improvement has taken place, and the set-backs due to drought and late sowing have been made up.

PAYMENT FOR SEEDS

DUBLIN CASE DECISION

The case was disposed of, at Howth yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, in which John J. Nugent, Dublin County Council rate collector, sued Peter Moore, Grange road, Raheny, for £43 11s. 4d., the amount, with interest, alleged to be due to the Council for seeds.

At a previo. court, Moore said that, in September, 1940, he called at the Council offices and paid £40 18s. to a young man and got a receipt. Subsequently he lost the receipt, and could not identify the man to whom he paid the money. The case was then adjourned to enable him to produce a man who was with him when he said he paid the money. Yesterday he repeated his evidence. Mr. T. Early, solicitor (for Nugent), produced a letter written by Moore on January 22nd, 1941, in which he said that he had received a bill for payment for seeds and would call in to the offices in the following month, and asked him to explain why, if he now contended that he had paid the account in September, 1940, he did not dispute the liability placed on him in that letter.

Moore said that the letter was a demand for rates and not an account for seeds, and he intended to go into the Council offices to see them about that.

Charles Foy, who said he had returned from England to give evidence, deposed to seeing Moore pay £40 18s. in the offices on September 2nd, 1940, and get a receipt.

"NO RECORD"

Sean Brophy, County Council Staff Officer, in charge of the rates, said there was no record of the payment. He was aware that there had been an enquiry into the affairs of the County Council.

Mr. J. C. Fagan, solicitor (for Moore), asked was there any reference in the auditor's report to a number of seeds' accounts having been paid, and not reaching the Council, and the witness replied that there was such a reference.

Mr. Early said that, as the result of that enquiry, it was found that there was not a single penny missing from the funds of the County Council.

The justice said that this was a case in which there was a very serious implication. If the Court accepted Mr. Moore's evidence it meant an implication that some member of the staff in the County Council office had received this money from Moore, issued a receipt, and did not lodge it to the credit of the County Council. For that reason he had taken the very greatest care in sifting the evidence and allowed the Council's solicitor to produce a further witness and he was satisfied that Mr. Moore paid his account. He accordingly dismissed the summons, and allowed £1 costs and £6 expenses.

APPEALS TO ELECTORS

Mr. Sean Milroy, at Lombard street, Dublin, said that the amount to be raised by rates in the city of Dublin in the current year was £2,042,372. It was regrettable that one party was appealing to the voters to elect a Council which would, in effect, be nothing more or less than a glorified Fianna Fail Cumann. "I ask the electors," said Mr. Milroy, "to realise that it is more important that the two million pounds raised in rates should be wisely expended than that the new Council shall be composed of Fianna Fail 'yes-men.'"

MEAT RATION IN U.S.?

CHICAGO, Monday.—Meat may be rationed in America. The Agricultural Marketing Administrator today told meat dealers that America may have to adopt meat rationing or meatless days "to ensure an equitable distribution of what will be in short supply." He added that while the production of livestock was expected to total 21,700,000,000 lbs. of meat, about four billions over the average, at least 3,200,000,000 lbs. would be shipped to Russia and to Britain for troops who were now fighting, and "who will be in combat when a second front opens."—(Reuter.)

The Dublin Rheumatic Clinic, 34 Upper Mount street, Ireland's first institution for the treatment of rheumatism, will probably open in a few weeks' time. At present arrangements are being held up by lack of supplies—both ordinary furniture and the special instruments which will bring to the poor of Dublin the finest treatment available.

AN INNOCENT PARTY

The charge against Daniel Cullen, dairyman, Coolock, County Dublin, of selling a motor van without a permit was dismissed under the Probation Act at Howth yesterday.

Superintendent Glynn said that Cullen sold the van to a person who was already dealt with at the Special Criminal Court for illegally exporting it. Cullen was a witness in that case, and gave the Gardai every assistance.

Mr. Dunne, solicitor, who defended, said that at the time Cullen was not aware that there was an Emergency Order requiring that a permit should be obtained before he sold the van. It was not sold until April, and the Order had not been very long in force.

Cullen stated that he sold the van for £32 10/-, but he never heard any more about it until the detectives called on him and said that it had been sent across the border. He did not know at the time he sold it that it was to be exported.

District Justice Reddin said he believed that Cullen was an innocent party in the transaction.

ERROR OF JUDGMENT

Charges of dangerous driving and driving without reasonable care against Patrick Murphy, bus driver, 3 Harding-ton street, were dismissed on the merits by District Justice McCann in Dublin yesterday.

Evidence was given that Murphy was driving a bus at Ballsbridge on the night last May, and collided with a tram; his bus mounted the kerb, and crashed into the R.D.S. railings.

The District Justice held that the accident was due to an error of judgment.

HELPED BY THE L.S.F.

Francis Lyons, North Circular road; Myles Walsh, Morgan place; Walter Moore, Charles street; Thomas Cowzer, Thomas street; James Maides, Watling street; Wm. McGrath, Lower Church street, and Wm. Carter, Phoenix street, were each sentenced, at Howth yesterday, to one month's imprisonment, suspended on the payment, each, of a fine of £5 and £1 compensation, for malicious damage and assault, at the licensed premises of Mr. James Baker, Palmerstown, Co. Dublin, last Sunday.

Sergeant Ward, Chapelizod, said that he was assisted in the arrest by the Chapelizod L.S.F. All the defendants but one had worked in England.

Mr. Baker said his door-man was so badly assaulted that he was unable to attend court, and District Justice Reddin said the only way to stop such conduct was to send the assailants to prison. He commended the action of Messrs. Archbold and O'Callaghan, of the L.S.F.

TRINITY OUT OF THE RUNNING

By P. D. MacWeeney.

THE position at the top of the League table remained unchanged in the main issue as a result of last Saturday's matches, for Phœnix and Leinster both won, and remain level in the lead. Dublin University lost to Y.M.C.A., and, dropping eight points behind, are now out of the running, unless, of course, the leaders lose their two remaining engagements—a highly unlikely development.

Phœnix, on their present form, look fairly certain to beat Y.M.C.A. and Clontarf. Although Y.M.C.A. are lying well up on the table and are one of the only two teams to beat Phœnix in the competition, I cannot visualise them doing so a second time, especially as Boucher is maintaining his remarkable spell of form. In the easy win over Civil Service on Saturday, Boucher had top score of 50 and took six wickets very cheaply.

Leinster's two opponents are Clontarf and Pembroke, and here the key to the situation would appear to be in Pembroke's match with Clontarf next week. This begins to look more probable in view of their treatment of Merrion on Saturday. The Leinster bowlers pinned the Merrion batsmen down, and left with rather less than two hours to get 122 runs, beat the clock comfortably.

The other two matches had no influence on the table, except that Y.M.C.A. are certain to end in the top half. Their win over Trinity, however, was against very weak opposition; only Shragg, Luce and Hill of the regulars turning out for the University. Pembroke had no trouble with Clontarf, who are lost in batting without N. C. Mahony.

Majideh Retires to Stud

Last week's Racing Calendar announced that Majideh, the Aga Khan's three-year-old filly by Mahmoud—Qurrat-al-Ain, had been struck out of all engagements. Our Curragh Correspondent now telegraphs that Majideh has been retired to the Aga Khan's stud. Trained for her owner-breeder by H. H. Hartigan at the Curragh, she won four races this season, including the Irish Thousand Guineas and Oaks. Her other successes were in the Ballsbridge Memorial Plate and the Loughbrown Plate, all run at the Curragh.

ST. LEGER ENGAGEMENT.

Fred Darling, trainer of the King's Big Game and Sun Chariot, states that H. C. Elliott has not yet nominated Pensyre for the Leger. Buckingham stable is the St. Leger. It will not be decided which horse he will ride until after the race. Both horses are trained by Gordon Richards, the stable jockey, who will have choice of mounts.

The card on the St. Leger will be called over at the Victoria Club, London, at 2 p.m. on Thursday.

CENTRAL BANK'S POWERS

LONDON CRITICISM

STRONG criticism of the three amendments to the Central Bank Bill, adopted in the last session of the Dail, appears in the current number of the London financial paper, The Economist, in an article by its Irish Correspondent.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES

The first of these amendments, it says, in effect, makes it possible for the Central Bank to subscribe directly to one-third of the Government issues in future, and it goes on to declare that this is in direct contravention of the recommendations of the Banking Commission, which strongly disapproved of direct lending by the Central Bank to the Government.

The second amendment, the writer continues, gives the Central Bank power to compel the commercial banks to transact their clearings through the Central Bank, particular provision being made for the clearing of cheques, bills and notes payable outside the State. This provision refers to the sterling payments collected by the Irish banks for their customers. The writer declares that the present clearing system had been evolved as a result of a century's experience, and "is calculated to produce the maximum expedition at the lowest cost." It proposes, however, that the powers given in this amendment are only permissive, and that the Government gave an assurance that there was no intention to put them into immediate operation.

LEGAL TENDER FUND

The third amendment criticised deals with the assets held in the Legal Tender Note Fund. The article recalls in this connection that the Banking Commission emphatically recommended that there should be 100 per cent. sterling cover for the legal tender note issue. The present amendment, it states, would enable that recommendation to be completely negatived. It points out that, under the Currency Act of 1927, the only assets permitted to be held in the Legal Tender Fund were gold, sterling, and British Government securities maturing within twelve months. In 1930, however, wider latitude was given by making provision for the admission of other types of security on the unanimous vote of the Currency Commission approved by the Minister for Finance, the Dail and Senate.

It was now proposed, the writer states, that the vote of the Central Bank in this matter need not be unanimous but that a majority should suffice. He then points out that the Central Bank Board contains five members nominated by the Minister for Finance, as against three representatives of the commercial banks. "This amendment," it concludes, "contains dangerous possibilities."

The article goes on to state that the consideration of these three amendments by the Senate has been deferred to September. It also says that the Senate, whose members include the Governer of the Bank of Ireland, two professors of economics, and other University representatives, is better qualified than the Dail to discuss this bill.

Mr. Churchill Re-appears

The mystery of Mr. Churchill's long silence is revealed this morning. Ever since his first—apparently inexplicable—silence resulted in the news that he had been visiting the United States of America, the people of many countries have accustomed themselves to look upon these lacunæ in his public appearances with the deepest interest. On this latest occasion his absence—it was so presumed—has been the subject of free discussion here in Ireland, as in every other country on earth; and we do not think that we offend against the laws of impartial comment in remarking that speculation boiled down to a simple question: "Moscow or hospital?" Clearly, there was no point in another visit by Mr. Churchill to the United States. What was either Great Britain or the United States to gain by it? On the other hand, everything pointed to the expediency of a brief sojourn in the company of M. Stalin—however strange may have appeared the companionship of the Communist leader and the statesman who, little more than twenty years ago, was the mainspring of an expedition against the fledgling Communist State. So it has proved to be. Conversations have been held from last Wednesday to last Saturday between M. Stalin, M. Molotov and Marshal Voroshilov, speaking for the U.S.S.R.; Mr. Churchill and General Wavell, with the British Ambassador in Moscow, on the British behalf, and Mr. Averil Harriman, for the United States. The report of their conclusions, as always, is formal. It merely reaffirms the "close friendship and understanding" between the three Great Powers, and announces their intention to prosecute the war against Germany with all their power and energy. These conventional phrases, of course, are merely the cloak for agreements of a far more practical nature. The first question that springs to everyone's mind is: What of the threatened "second front" against the "Axis" Powers? What concord has been reached on that vital subject? Many weeks have passed since Mr. Anthony Eden returned from Moscow with a treaty of alliance between Great Britain and the U.S.S.R. in his pocket. The British Press—we say nothing of the British public—stressed it as an indication that the Russians were prepared to fight to the bitter end. The Russian people took it as an assurance that Britain was making ready to come to their aid in what seemed to them the only practical way—namely, by the early opening of a second front in Europe. Has Mr. Churchill encouraged this belief during his visit to Moscow?

Meetings between the dictators of Germany and Italy, as a rule, have resulted in swift, and generally effective, action. The two dramatic meetings between the leaders of the British and American nations have not shewn similarly quick or conspicuous results, but they certainly have not been ineffective; they have led to closer co-ordination in the work of the two Governments and to an improvement in the production of munitions of war. We do not venture to prophesy whether this latest conference between the heads, or leading representatives, of the three major Allied Powers will shew spectacular results; but it is hard to believe that M. Stalin can have been satisfied with anything less than a promise of the expected second front at the earliest possible moment. All the signs are that Russia is putting up her supreme fight. She has thrown so many men and machines into the defence of Stalingrad that a German victory is bound to leave her cruelly impoverished, while even a repulse of the Germans must impair her resources beyond all reasonable measure. In these circumstances who can blame her if she calls for assistance, and if she sees only one practical form of assistance? The British and American peoples are divided concerning the form that help for Russia ought to take. Many believe that the best policy lies in a wholesale and intense bombing of the German cities. Others think that, if sufficient reinforcements can be poured into North Africa to recapture all the ground which has been lost to Marshal Rommel and to drive the "Axis" forces back into the sea, Germany will be compelled to detach many divisions from her Eastern front in order to cope with the Southern menace. Others, again, would be content to flood Russia with British and American munitions, whether via the Persian Gulf or the Arctic. It does not look, however, as if any of these expedients will satisfy the Russian people's demand. Their minds are set upon a second front—which is to say, upon an Anglo-American invasion of the Continent—and they see no hope of salvation, of a successful diversion of the German effort, in any less drastic course of action. Mr. Churchill may have informed the Russian leaders that a second front, according to their definition, is impossible. He may have told them, on the other hand, that it has been projected by London and Washington, and will be opened this week, next week, at any time. Nobody, outside the closed ranks of military and political leaders, is in a position to know. Others will learn only when the expeditionary force begins to move.

"No Smoking!"

It has taken a war to reawaken the agitation for the integrity of the non-smoking compartment. A correspondent points out, in a letter to The Times, that there have appeared recently in important British newspapers letters from several widely-separated areas, all of which urge that the non-smoking rule should be strictly observed. On one of the London underground railways, it is said, a notice has appeared calling the attention of travellers to a conviction for wilful refusal to obey the regulation. It is curious that the observance of the rule should have become a matter of controversy at this particular time, when difficulties of transport render it extremely unlikely that the would-be traveller will have any choice as to where he may sit. Simultaneously with the letters mentioned—sometimes in the same newspapers—irate communications have been published from persons who have bought first-class tickets for a train journey, and then failed to obtain a seat at all. It would be, after all, a little hard to prosecute a man who could obtain no seat except in a non-smoking compartment, if he refused to knock out a well-lit pipe—especially when, in yet another part of the daily paper already referred to, there appeared an advertisement urging him to smoke every pipeful of tobacco right down to the end. It would be still harder on him if, at the same time, non-smokers were occupying seats in the smoking compartments. If the by-law is to be enforced rigidly, it would seem only just to add an appendix making it an offence not to smoke in a smoking compartment. More curious, however, than the fact that the controversy has arisen in wartime, is the fact that it has arisen at all. It has always been part of the proud heritage of the Englishman that there were certain well-defined laws of his land which it was right to disobey. "Keep Off The Grass" was one; "No Dogs Allowed" another; but the greatest of these was "No Smoking." He has regarded it as part of the enjoyment of a continental holiday that these regulations can be disobeyed in so many languages, and under the horror-stricken eyes of so many habitually obedient inhabitants. He has puffed great clouds of smoke at "Rauchen Verboten" and at "Défense de Fumer." He has hung out of railway-carriage windows, in spite of the solemn warnings of notices in a dozen different tongues—including his own. He has walked upon German grass, where, according to Jerome K. Jerome, the very dogs will not set foot. After all that, it is his fate, in the middle of his own London, in the very fastnesses of his own Tube, to be faced by a grim announcement that, for the future, a "No Smoking" sign in a carriage means that he may not smoke.

BLACK-OUT TESTS

The plans of the Department of Defence for black-out tests during the coming winter have not been abandoned. It was announced by the Department yesterday that the tests will be held at intervals during the winter "to ensure that effective preparations are being made by all affected parties, so that they will be in a position to comply strictly with the provisions of the Emergency Powers (Control of Lights) (General) Order, 1942," if the enforcement of the Order becomes necessary.

A handbook on the black-out arrangements will be issued shortly by the Department.

On Monday the Irish Times reported that black-out tests would not be held until the Government had managed to get sufficient black-out material from England.

DUBLIN THEATRES

Olympia.—Though my sisters and their schoolgirl friends all stained their prize-book copies of Louisa Alcott's "Little Women" with their tears, I confess that, even in the widest indiscretions of my youthful reading, the title always had repelled me decisively. I should very much like now, for the sake of the particular little women whom Carl Cloper has called into the stage version of it at the Olympia, and for their brave efforts, to proclaim that my sisters had been right and I had been wrong, but I have to admit that my views are unchanged. The stage version revealed what I had always suspected—namely, that it was a very slight piece excessively loaded with sentiment and with a high Early Victorian flavour.

The little women of the piece, headed by Diana Romney, were charming and talented, and very attractive studies were given by Miss Romney, Joan Gorman and Deirdre Halligan. Charles Keogh and C. H. Edwin gave their usual very good performances in elderly yparts, and Evelyn Lund gave us one of her richest character pieces as a tough old harridan with a heart of gold.

In fairness to the production, it must be added that many of the audience, including some much too young to be excited to nostalgic feelings by the hooped skirts and leg-of-mutton sleeves of the costumes, sat looking at the stage with starry eyes for most of the evening, and that as the dying speech of the invalid sister the house hushed as if it had been listening to the last words of Ophelia or Desdemona.—P. G.

Queen's.—The management certainly know the meaning of the word "variety." It is the essence of their new show, "Serenade to Happiness," the third edition of which is this week's attraction. From the singing of Eire O'Reilly to the clever tapping of the Moonbeams, it is slick and snappy, alternating rapidly from comedy to music, and then to musical comedy. Jimmy Harvey has a happy knack of making the audience enter into the spirit of his act, an accomplishment not at all easy in Dublin. Miss O'Reilly proves once again that she has a really adaptable voice. To mention any other members of the cast would be unfair, for they all maintain the standard of humour and melody which is set by the two principals. The orchestra, as usual, is in Alex. C. Fryer's capable hands.

On the screen is "Appointment for Love," with Charles Boyer.

The New.—The New Theatre Group opened their season last night at the New Theatre, Rutland place, with "Of Mice and Men," John Steinbeck's famous story, adapted for the stage by Joseph McColium, a member of the Group. This Group, which did good work last year, included "Of Mice and Men" in their programme, and the revival will be welcomed.

John Murphy, Frank Iremonger and Iris Lawlor again fill their original roles, and good support is given by Fred Roberts, John M. Allen, A. Manulin, Gerry MacCarthy, Kevin O'Donoghue and George MacLay. Production is by T. A. Gannon.

The Royal.—Peggy Dell, in a series of popular songs at the piano, is brightest feature of Number Three of the Happy Blending Series, which is at the Hawkins street theatre this week.

"Paddy" was the special request number, and Miss Dell made strong appeal to members of the audience to send in requests for their favourite songs. Noel Purcell is featured in a ventriloquist act, in which he has a perky assistant. Johnny Keys proves as successful as ever in a further group of songs. Billy Grant is a newcomer to this stage, and he definitely established himself last night with his selections on the humble tin whistle. The Royal Violettes, collectively and individually, provide attractive turns, and Jimmy Campbell takes the orchestra through a bright selection. The "Take it or Leave it" competition provided an amount of entertainment—not so much in what the competitors knew as what they should have known, but didn't. George Rothwell is at the theatre organ, and his selections of modern songs won a big "hand." On the screen are two very bright pictures—"The Body Disappears" and "Brooklyn Orchid."

The Gaiety.—Entering on its third week, "And So To Laugh," the latest of the Jimmy O'Donovan productions, seems to be only getting into its stride. Certainly, the author, Harry O'Donovan, knows how to tickle the palate of his Dublin audience. Of course, Jimmy O'Dea is sufficient himself to put any show across. May Devitt shows a versatility that commands attention, and Josephine O'Hagan also gives keen pleasure with her singing and acting. Then there is Mary Foswolsky dancing so delightfully, and Denis Barry providing merry quip and jest; but the whole show is a succession of good things.

The Abbey.—"The Whiteheaded Boy," Lennox Robinson's ever popular comedy, has been continued for a second week at the Abbey. Last night's audience showed great appreciation of the play, which was presented by a highly capable team of players, who were given hearty applause.

LOST CRUISER
HER LAST MOMENTS

"Information has been received," says the Admiralty, "that most of the officers and ship's company of H.M.S. Manchester are safe, although no names are yet available. Three officers and 142 men were picked up by His Majesty's ships. The remaining survivors are in French hands."

The loss of H.M.S. Manchester, while protecting the recent convoy to Malta, was announced by the Admiralty last Friday. The cruiser was damaged and subsequently sank.

GIBRALTAR, Monday.—The last moments of the Manchester, and the dramatic story of the saving of most of her crew, were described to me here to-day by one of the survivors, says Reuter's Special Correspondent. He is Able Seaman J. Green, of Milton street, Longeaton, Nottingham. "Manchester was attacked by E-boats at 1 a.m. on Thursday, August 13," he said. "We were about seven miles off the coast of Tunisia when the E-boats came in. It was difficult to see them. Suddenly we saw a tiny light, and realised that it was an electric torch shining dimly, and the torpedo man in one of the E-boats was setting a depth torpedo. We let fly with a six-inch high-explosive shell and scored a direct hit. She was blown to pieces.

"Another E-boat let fly with a torpedo, missed, and, slewing round, fired a second fish, which struck the Manchester. A few seconds later, when we were on the quarter deck, another E-boat sprayed the deck with machine-gun bullets. We replied and scored a hit.

"We abandoned ship in a carley float. We tried to make the coast of Tunisia, and had been in the sea for eight hours when a British destroyer rescued us. A French ship came out several times, picking up survivors and taking them to the shore. As it got light we could see them lined up on the beach. Then we sighted a British destroyer, which picked us up and brought us on to Gibraltar."

Green added that many officers and men reached the Tunisian coast safely. More were rescued by a destroyer.—(Reuter.)

FIGHT IN STRAITS
GERMAN R-BOAT SUNK

Patrols of British light coastal forces on Sunday night engaged five or six German R-boats (armed motor vessels) in the Straits of Dover.

"One of our patrols, under the command of Lieutenant G. D. K. Richards, R.N., set fire to one of the enemy R-boats," says an Admiralty communiqué. "This enemy vessel was seen to sink. The German Commanding Officer was killed, but our patrol picked up fifteen German ratings, who are now prisoners of war.

"Another of our patrols, under the command of Lieutenant D. C. Sidebottom, R.N.V.R., engaged the enemy and rammed one of the enemy boats. This enemy boat was so seriously damaged that it is unlikely to have reached its base. Two of the remaining R-boats were severely damaged by gunfire from our boats.

"All our boats have returned to their base. There was a small number of casualties. The next-of-kin are being informed as soon as possible.

"Our coastal batteries co-operated in this action, and contributed to its success."

R-boats, says the Press Association, have a speed of 18 knots and are used for coastal work, including mine-sweeping. They are smaller and more lightly armed than E-boats. Some are of 90 tons displacement, and have a crew of 17, while another type is of 45 tons, with a complement of 15. The larger vessels have two 1-pounder anti-aircraft guns, and the others have one anti-aircraft gun of similar calibre.

Doctor's Appointment. — Roscommon Board of Health have appointed Dr. Edward Kilmartin, Kilbeggan, to Ballyleague Dispensary, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Kelly.

TRIAL BY JURY
SUGGESTED REFORMS

A tribute to the Press in Ireland because it did not follow the practice which obtained in England and America of giving extensive publicity to the preliminary depositions in trials on criminal charges was paid by Mr. Justice Deane when he spoke on the subject of "Trial by Jury" at the Dublin Rotary Club luncheon at the Gresham Hotel yesterday.

Pointing out that when a man's pocket was at stake he preferred to leave himself in the hands of a judge, but when his life was at stake he had to go on trial before a jury, Mr. Justice Deane said he would prefer a bench of three or five judges to the retention of the jury system. If it was to be retained, however, he suggested the following reforms:—Defending counsel should have a right to sum up at the conclusion of each day's proceedings. Jury men should not be picked "from a hat." They should be selected from a special class.

Jurors should be required to give answers to a set of questions. Juries should also be required to give to the judge at the end of his trial a short written statement of the reasons which underlay the verdict arrived at by them.

Mr. Keith Bacon thanked the lecturer.

FILM IN EDUCATION

In a test carried out in a Dublin school it was found that 61 per cent. of the pupils attending the local cinema once a week, said Liam O Laighaire, in a lecture last night to An Comhaltas Múinteoireachta agus Timthireachta in Coláiste Mhuire, Ath Cliath, under the aegis of Craobh na n-Aisdirghe. To impart knowledge, develop the artistic sense, and sharpen observation were the chief objects of the educational film. Teachers ought to take more interest in films shown in the neighbourhood of the school. Silent films were better than talkies for educational purposes.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

WHILE there is a strong demand in Britain for Irish stores the export of which Mr. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, suggested, a few days ago, might be greatly increased, there is no great encouragement for Irish producers to export fat cattle at a price so relatively low compared with the store price. British farmers have, however, quite a good supply of fodder crops, roots, etc., and they are in quite a good position to feed stores.

Hire-purchase Order

The excessive prices which have been charged for new and second-hand furniture are drastically reduced by a new Order, which came into force to-day. This stipulates that, before a hire-purchase agreement is entered into, the cash price of the goods must be stated in writing. One-eighth of the total cash price, or £5, whichever is the greater amount, must be deposited at once; the balance must be paid in not less than six instalments over the period of between six months and two years, and the maximum charge for hire-purchase facilities must not exceed one-fifth of the balance due after the first deposit is made. Where the sale is made outright, although credit may be given, nothing will be allowed by way of interest on the maximum price calculated in accordance with the Order. Before the introduction of the Order, dining-room suites which had a pre-war cash price of £47, and a hire-purchase price of £66, were costing £102 and £149, respectively. The corresponding prices now are £80 and £94.

Venison Prices

If one of the Phœnix Park deer, which are to be destroyed, found its way to Britain, its price would be controlled under a new regulation issued by the Ministry of Food, which stipulates prices of 8d. to 1s. 8d. a lb., according to the cut, for venison sold by retail. While, in peace-time, the amount of venison consumed is small enough to make it a negligible factor in the national diet, a maximum price was fixed last year. This step proved ineffective, as large catering establishments in London and Liverpool were able to buy direct from Scotland at the retail price of higher. Something in the nature of a "black market" developed, the local Scots people suffering badly. It has, therefore, been decided that venison will be controlled this year at every stage, from the deer forest-owner down to the wholesaler and retailer. The only sale which does not require a licence is the first sale after the deer has been killed. The peak season for venison is September and October.

Magic-Lantern Pioneer

Mr. Caspar Briggs, who has died at Atlantic City, was a pioneer in the development of magic-lantern slides, especially the collodion slide. At 96 he was the oldest photographer in America. Mr. Briggs became interested in lantern slides through his father, Dr. Daniel Briggs, who gave up his medical practice in the forties of the last century to devote his time to slide-making. In 1851 Dr. Briggs and his son developed the method of applying the collodion process to glass for slides. Soon some of the leading artists in the United States painted pictures exclusively for Caspar Briggs slides. In his first motion pictures, known as "slip slides," figures painted on one slide were made to move across a background imposed on another slide. Later he reached a peak of achievement with "dancing and skeleton" slides. In this a skeleton was photographed on mica in six different poses, each showing successive steps in a dance—one of the earliest forms of motion pictures.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Corridors and Crowds

In our letter "columns" recently I saw a suggestion that corridor tickets should be issued at reduced rates to passengers who are unable to get seats in trains, and that tickets should be sold, not at the booking office, but by a conductor on the train, in the same way as the tramway company collects its fares.

While travelling to Cork some weeks ago (writes a correspondent), I was forced to stand as far as Limerick Junction. As there was every indication that I should be left perpendicular for the remainder of my journey, I cornered one of the many inspectors who were continually pushing past me, and sounded him about the prospects of getting a refund on the ticket which had served me so badly.

He told me that there was no reason why I should not be suitably compensated, but said that it was a matter for the guard, not for him. As an afterthought he added: "Of course, you will get a refund only if you are left standing for the entire journey. If you get a seat between this and Cork, you have no claim." This, apparently, was the snag; for there would almost certainly be a seat after Mallow. In this particular case there was adequate accommodation after this stage had been reached, so I abandoned my efforts. However, the incident showed me that the railway company was not entirely heartless, though, perhaps, exacting.

Communal Kitchens

In this country we have been anxious to secure the establishment of communal kitchens to meet the difficulties created by the food and fuel shortage. In America, where "eating out" is far more popular than here, the authorities are interested in the opening of similar kitchens to aid industrial production.

Recently I came across the following comment in Mrs. Roosevelt's famous "My Day" column: "I wonder if, in some of our more crowded industrial areas, we have not been a little slow in developing communal feeding kitchens, where the workers and their families may obtain good meals at reasonable prices."

A couple of days later there appeared a storm of protest similar to that which was encountered in the early days of the idea in Ireland—"a step towards socialised society," "the most effective means of breaking up home life," and so on. This time, for once, we were ahead of our American cousins.

Martin Murphy

It is no disparagement of the present heavily handicapped management of the Gaiety to speak of that theatre's golden days, when "Charlie" Hyland was in control, under whom poor Martin Murphy worked as Stage Carpenter for many years. Martin gloried in being a typical Dubliner—he was very proud of the King street house, which he regarded as the finest theatre in the British Isles.

On one occasion Lorraine, the Actor Aviator, wanted the flies to be lowered to an unusual depth. "Arrah, Misther Lorraine," said Martin, "this is the Dublin Gaiety, with an important gallery—it isn't one of your little tuppeny-ha'penny London playhouses." Martin "knew everybody" in the very self-conscious Irish literary renaissance of the 'nineties—his bosom friend was "Cassie" Marciewicz, and many of his stories were about "me and the Count."

One of the finest of our bulls was made by Martin at Charlie Hyland's funeral. Charlie, who had been one of the most popular men in the city, retired about fifteen years before he died, and suffered the fate of most "back numbers" in that a very tiny group attended his funeral. Martin was disgusted, and at the Requiem Mass in Haddington road he whispered to the writer: "Listen, Jimmy, if this had occurred during his lifetime, the b . . . place would have been packed."

Muintir na Tire

I was interested to notice in a Northern Irish newspaper a reference to the broadcasts from the Muintir na Tire Congress in Limerick. The writer remarked that the "fireside chats" had been the object of much interest to himself and his friends. "We learned," he says, "much more of the ideals of the men of the South and West who have put into motion some of the schemes which generations of Irishmen had dreamed of."

He spoke, too, in terms of high praise of Father Hayes, the energetic Chairman of Muintir na Tire. "Probably it is through men and organisations such as these, rather than through political parties and programmes, that 'a real unity will be achieved between the six counties and the twenty-six.

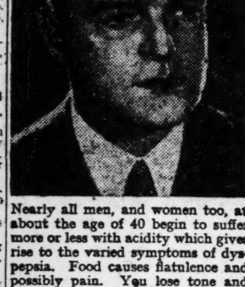
Middle-Aged Tired Feeling
is probably due to Acid Stomach



Nearly all men, and women too, at about the age of 40 begin to suffer more or less with acidity which gives rise to the varied symptoms of dyspepsia. Food causes flatulence and possibly pain. You lose tone and suffer from physical and mental weariness which shakes your self-confidence and makes you imagine that old age is overtaking you. Your doctor would tell you to dismiss the thought and banish the trouble by taking 'Milk of Magnesia' to sweeten your sour stomach. He would also assure you that 'Milk of Magnesia' is the antacid most acceptable and soothing to the stomach. 'Milk of Magnesia' restores the normal activity of the gastric juice so that the digestion of food proceeds easily, without disturbance. The effect of 'Milk of Magnesia' in neutralising acidity is marvellous. With good digestion regained, most of the "pep" you think you've lost will quickly return. Get either the liquid preparation or the remarkable new "Milk of Magnesia" brand Tablets. They're delightful to take and easy to carry with you.

Obtainable everywhere.

Thanks to Fynnon Salt

How's this for a happy experience? Mr. W. writes: "For years I had suffered from a mild form of rheumatism, combined with headache and general lassitude. In August 1940 as a result of seeing frequent advertisements for Fynnon Salt, I purchased a tin and took a dose every morning. The result was wonderful; in a very short time... I felt like a new man—refreshed and invigorated in mind and body."

Few rheumatic cases are exactly alike but most benefit enormously as a result of taking Fynnon Salt. Fynnon washes away rheumatic acids from the blood-stream, flushes liver and kidneys. Large tin of Fynnon 1/6 at all chemists. New trial size 7½d. As a necessary economy Fynnon Salt is now packed in a round tin.

FYNNON WASHES AWAY RHEUMATIC ACIDS, often the cause of:— RHEUMATISM, GOUT, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, etc.
